Message about herbaria from the BSBI President

"Herbaria are one of the most fantastic botanical resources I know. And one of the most under-used and under-appreciated.

What better way to spend a cold winter's day than checking out those difficult to separate species in an herbarium, whether large or small. Or admiring, perhaps with a certain horror at the number of specimens, the rare plants one has never seen in the wild. Or in some cases maybe never will because they've all ended up on herbarium sheets!

Many local herbaria are themselves on the

Visiting herbaria

Many herbaria welcome botanists who wish to visit their collections, but you do need to contact them in advance to arrange your visit.

Use the list (see 'Contact details for herbaria', below left) to get in touch.

We'd be happy to publish your report on your herbarium visit on the BSBI News & Views blog - email Chris to discuss

New Year Plant Hunt

The ninth BSBI New Year Plant Hunt will run from 1st to 4th January 2020. A huge thank you to everyone who has taken part in previous years: you are helping us build up a clearer picture of how wild and naturalised plants are responding to changes in autumn and winter weather patterns across Britain & Ireland.

Results and analysis 2019:

BSBI's Head of Science Dr Kevin Walker has looked at all the 2019 results and here is his 2019 NYPH analysis.

On our 2018-9 Results page you can see an interactive map, images, stats, most frequently recorded plants and longest lists.

The 2019 NYPH press release is available here.

Short interview about NYPH here with John Humphrys on BBC Radio 4 Today

After the Hunt is over....

If you want to carry on spotting wildflowers in bloom after the New Year Plant Hunt is over, why not take part in Wild Flower Hour?

Follow the 2018-9 Hunt!

New Year Plant Hunt records and photos on Twitter #newyearplanthunt and on Instagram.

Daily highlights from 29th December onwards on the BSBI News & Views blog.
