

Interested in working with plants?

Find out how the Botanical Society of Britain and Ireland can help launch your career

Bird's-foot (Ornithopus perpusillus) by Hazel Metherell

Improving your identification skills

- Training courses
- Wide range of ID guides and books
- Training grants
- Field meetings

Delivering nationally recognised qualifications

- BSBI Field Identification Skills Certificate (FISC)
- Identiplant

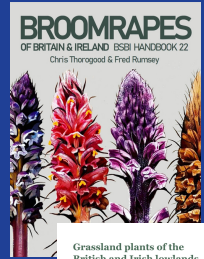

Providing free online resources

- Our dedicated student page: bsbi.org/students
- Helpful hints to get you started: bsbi.org/get-involved
- ID guides, useful websites, help via social media: bsbi.org/identification
- Online plant distribution maps: bsbi.org/maps-and-data
- And much more.

Botanical Publications

BSBI Handbooks are acknowledged as being indispensable for the identification of difficult plant groups, while our Atlases and other books provide unparalleled insight into the British and Irish flora. bsbi.org/bsbi-handbooks bsbi.org/publications

Journal Publication Opportunities

Help to guide you through the process of publication, from submission to working with an editorial team, proof-reading and promotion. Contact us to find out about publishing in British & Irish Botany: britishandirishbotany.org

Study, Research and Training Grants

BSBI funds a range of grants each year, applications open on 1st January. To find out more, visit bsbi.org/grants

Student Membership Discount

Joining the BSBI as a Student Member costs just £15/€18 a year for registered students.

To join, visit bsbi.org/join-us

Stay up to date on news and the latest from our botanical network by signing up to our free monthly newsletter by visiting bsbi.org/email-signup

Scan here for live links to all this content!

enquiries@bsbi.org

@BSBIbotany